

CHAPTER 1

Phileas Fogg was a member of the Reform Club. He was an English gentleman. He didn't have a wife or children. He fired his only servant for bringing him water because it wasn't the right temperature.

It was October. Phileas Fogg sat in his house and waited for his new servant. There was a knock at the door. It was his new servant, Passepartout.

"You're a Frenchman, I believe," asked Phileas Fogg, "and your name is John?"

"My name is Jean Passepartout. I was a singer and a circus-rider. Then I was a professor of gymnastics. I was a fireman in Paris. I left France five years ago and came to England to be a valet. I want to live a quiet life and forget the name of Passepartout," said Passepartout.

"Passepartout suits me," said Mr. Fogg. He stood up and left the house. Passepartout was all alone. Passepartout was an honest and lively man. Phileas Fogg was a quiet man. He had a very strict life.

"Mr. Fogg's a real gentleman! I'll get on well with him," thought Passepartout.

fire (v) to end someone's employment; to dismiss valet (n) a man's personal male servant

*There was a knock at the door.
It was his new servant, Passepartout.*

Phileas Fogg went to the Reform Club. He had breakfast. He read the paper and ate his dinner. After dinner, he sat by the fire. His friends came into the club in the evening. They talked about the story in the newspaper. Robbers stole £50,000 from the Bank of England. They argued about it all night. When they sat down to play whist, they were still arguing.

“Where could the thief go, then?”

“Oh, I don’t know that. The world’s big enough.”

“It was, once,” said Phileas Fogg, in a low tone.

“What do you mean by ‘once’? Is the world now smaller than before?”

“Certainly, I agree with Mr. Fogg. The world’s now smaller than before. A man can now go round it ten times more quickly than a hundred years ago. And that is why the search for this thief will be successful.”

“And also why the thief can get away more easily.”

“You have a strange way, Ralph, of proving that the world has grown smaller. So, because you can go round it in three months —”

“In eighty days,” said Phileas Fogg.

“That’s true, gentlemen,” added John Sullivan. “Only eighty days because now there’s a new section between Rotherham and Allahabad, on the Great Indian Peninsula Railway.

Here are the numbers in the paper:

- From London to Suez via Mont Cenis and Brindisi, by rail and steamboats: 7 days

- From Suez to Bombay, by steamer: 13 days

- From Bombay to Calcutta, by rail: 3 days

- From Calcutta to Hong Kong, by steamer: 13 days

- From Hong Kong to Yokohama, by steamer: 6 days

- From Yokohama to San Francisco, by steamer: 22 days

- From San Francisco to New York, by rail: 7 days

- From New York to London, by steamer and rail: 9 days.

In total: 80 days.”

“Yes, in eighty days, except for bad weather, bad winds, shipwrecks, railway accidents, and so on.”

“All included,” said Phileas Fogg.

“I’d like to see you do it in eighty days,” said one of the gentlemen.

“It depends on you. Shall we go?” Mr. Fogg said.

“I’ll bet you four thousand pounds. It’s impossible!”

“I disagree. It’s quite possible,” said Mr. Fogg.
